

Home page redesign for Front Range Internet, Inc., an expanding Service Provider (ISP) located in northern Colorado. The goal for the new user interface was to reflect corporate regional and world-wide Internet access.

The custom Yellow Baron Graphics photograph of a local mountain range provided a regionally accurate contrast with a global business outreach.

An animation, consisting of a beam of light that underscores the mountains, crosses the globe, highlighting the continents while passing from left to right using a technically sophisticated combination of layers and timelines.
